SIXTEENTH SUNDAY READINGS:

...and on His shoulder gently laid...

Jeremiah was called to his ministry as a prophet in around 626 BC. At that time things had gone a bit array in that the religious leaders were failing the people in their role as shepherds and not keeping the community together. So God speaks through Jeremiah with the message that He will gather together the remnant of His flock and raise up good shepherds to care for them and to guide them. Centuries later Jesus, The Good Shepherd, came and laid down His life for God's people. He did so as an act of obedience to the Father, in an act of unconditional love He gathered together the scattered children of God. St Paul tells us that Jesus shepherds His people not only by His teachings but also by His destruction of the powers of darkness: sin and death. Jesus' sacrificial action restores and reconciles humanity to the Father. Through Baptism we share in Jesus' victory over death, darkness and sin and are given access to the Father. For us the Good Shepherd will always direct us back to the Father, since Jesus is the guardian and shepherd of our souls. (2Peter2:25).

SEVENTEENTH SUNDAY READINGS:

Your give us the bread from Heaven...

For the next five Sunday's we will be reading chapter six of St John's Gospel, which is a reflection on the wondrous mystery of the Eucharist. It begins with the multiplications of the loaves and fish. Some phrases used here are repeated at the Last Supper: He took, He blessed, He broke bread. This miracle takes place around Passover time – when God's people celebrated their freedom from slavery and their thanksgiving for His protection. At the Last Supper - the new People of God - would be fed not with Passover lamb, but the Lamb of God: another meal of deliverance and thanksgiving. From the start of the chapter, we know that John is speaking about more than loaves and fish. He is speaking about this New Passover, the Eucharist. The Eucharist is the sacrament by which we are united with Jesus and the apostles at the Last Supper. It is important for us to remember and rejoice that when we receive communion we are receiving the Food that God provides. Let us pray for a deeper appreciation, a deeper reverence for the great gift of Love that is the Eucharist

...The bread that contains all goodness!
