

THE THURSDAY CLUB

I would like to tell you how the Thursday Club has helped me. My father died in 2016. During the last few years of his life I spent many hours each week looking after him as his health declined and his need for physical assistance increased. After my father's death I realised that I had largely lost touch with other relatives and former friends. When I did speak to them I had nothing interesting to say.

About a year ago I started attending the Thursday Club. There I have found quiet and undemanding friendship among the wise folk who attend the afternoon sessions and the enthusiastic people who run them. Tea / coffee and light refreshments are served but you can have as much or as little of these as you wish. Whether you come as a guest or a host / helper there is no pressure to attend every week. So if you are alone or lonely or just wish to meet friends in a gentle and undemanding atmosphere why not give the Thursday Club a try.

We will look forward to seeing you there.

Cora Flanagan